DHS Alert

The US is in a general enhanced threat environment. This applies to us in California, as well. The concern is about homegrown violent extremists who could strike with little or no notice as happened in Orlando.

- increased public vigilance and awareness is required
- If you see something say something
- To report suspicious activity, contact your local law enforcement agency.

Phase II Activation of the Heat Contingency Plan

Phase II of the Heat Contingency Plan will be activated from Sunday, 06/19/16 – Tuesday, 06/21/16. Due to forecasts of dangerous and excessive heat.

- Per the National Weather Service (NWS):
 - High Confidence in this being a top 5 heat event in history, especially for desert areas and high desert areas.
 - High confidence that the event will impact the central valley from Fresno south and Southern California.
 - Medium confidence that coastal areas could reach historic high temperatures.
 - NWS San Diego has already spoken to San Bernardino, Riverside, Imperial, and Orange Counties. All counties are elevating their Heat Plan Levels.
 - NWS San Diego will conduct a conference call with these counties tomorrow.
- A State Agency conference call facilitated by Cal OES will be conducted at 1100 hours Friday, 06/17/16.
- The Emergency Services Coordinator (ESC) Territory Representatives for the Cal OES Southern Region Operational Areas (OA's) are reaching out to identify any special measures the counties may be taking in response to the excessive heat event.

Heat Impact Levels

More Information

Heat affects everyone differently. In order to better address heat risk and to provide a daily service with regard to preparing for heat events, the NWS has developed the experimental Heat Impacts Levels (HIL). The HIL is a forecast product which provides a quick view of heat risk potential over the upcoming seven days. The heat risk is portrayed in a numeric (0-4) and color (green/yellow/orange/red/magenta) scale which is similar in approach to the Air Quality Index (AQI) or the UV Index. In this way, it provides one value each day that indicates the approximate level of heat risk concern for any location along with identifying the groups who are most at risk. This product is supplementary to the official heat watch/warning/advisory program and is meant to provide continuously available heat risk guidance for those decision makers and heat sensitive populations who need to take actions at levels that may be below current heat product levels.

Category	Level	Meaning
Green	0	No Elevated Risk
Yellow	1	Low Risk for those extremely sensitive to heat
Orange	2	Moderate Risk for those who are sensitive to heat
Red	3	High Risk for much of the population, especially those who are heat sensitive and those without effective cooling
Magenta	4	Very High Risk for entire population due to long duration heat, with little to no relief overnight

SITUATION SUMMARY

Cal OES Law Enforcement Branch

The Cal OES Law Duty Officer (LDO) will be monitoring a protest at a Church in Sacramento this evening, 06/15/16, where the potential for crowd control issues exists after the Pastor made very inflammatory remarks about the Orlando shooting incident.

Active Weather Warnings, Watches and Advisories by County:

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

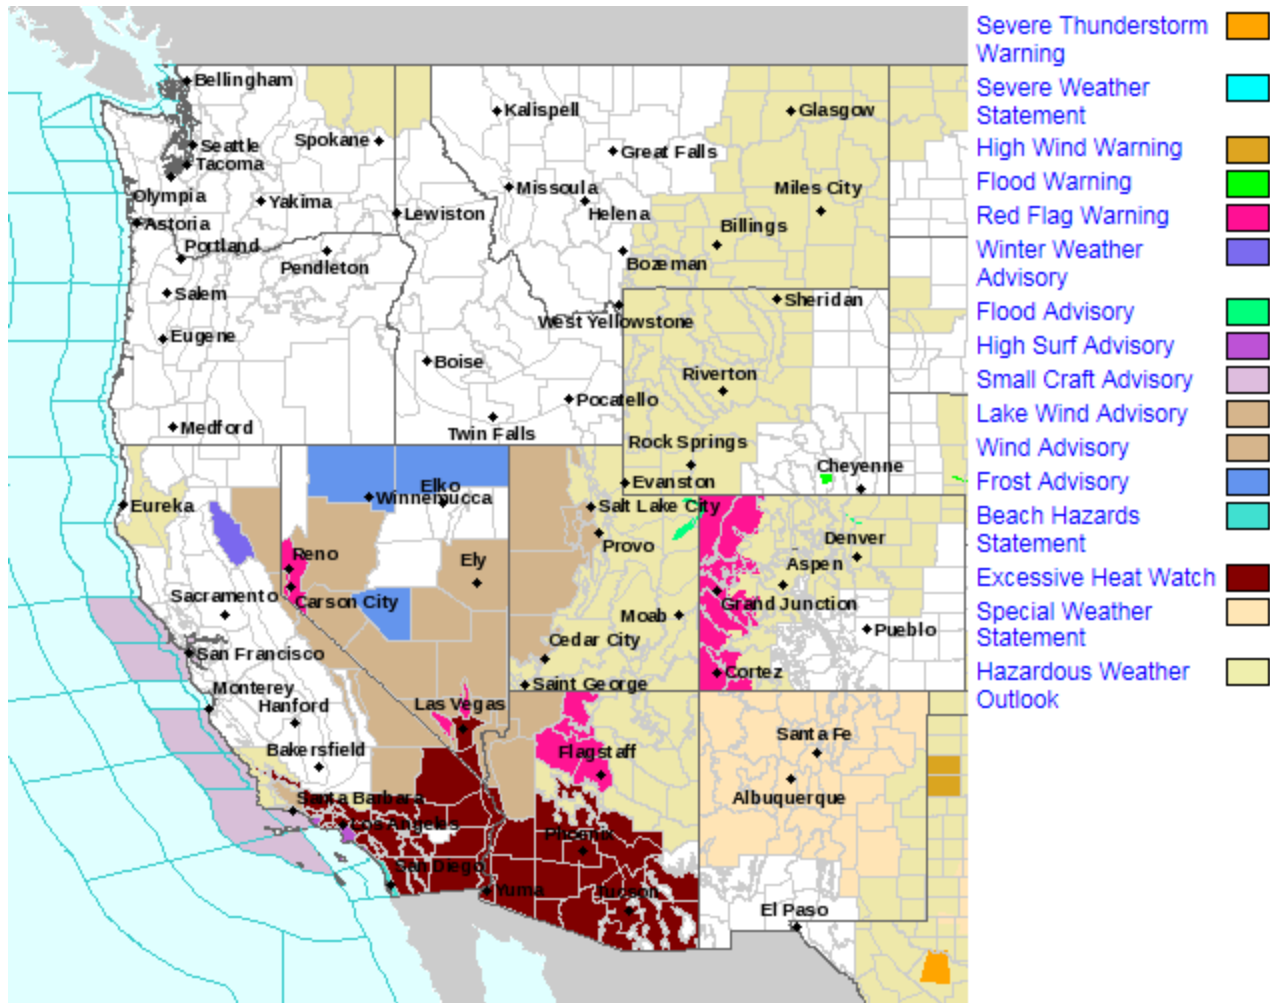

An unseasonably strong, cold and wet weather system centered over Vancouver Island will be moving south today and through the Pacific Northwest over the next few days. It has brought plenty of cloudiness to the region and there has already been some showers over our northeast areas with amounts less than a tenth inch (wetting rain) so far. More cloudiness and precipitation will come from this system, especially tonight into Thursday. Several areas could see around a quarter to third of an inch, mainly in the mountains. A few inches of snow may also fall above about 6500 feet today and Thursday. Afternoon high temperatures will be 15-20 degrees below normal through Friday. Some gusty west to southwest winds are expected to develop later today, which could continue to cause some moderately low relative humidity (RH) in areas east of the Sierra crest. RH will be high enough elsewhere where it gets a bit windy so those areas will be of lesser fire potential concern. Any thunderstorms that might occur over the next few days will be isolated and wet. High pressure will quickly spread north across California from out of the desert southwest over the weekend with a very rapid return to much warmer, drier conditions that will last into next week. Triple digit heat is expected to develop for the warmer inland areas early next week with potential for the warmest inland locations to see highs around 108. RH will become low with many areas seeing overnight RH recovery only in the 30-45% range and afternoon values of 10-15% fairly widespread. Thunderstorms early next week appear unlikely at this time, but that situation will be watched closely.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

A trough will remain parked off the coast through Friday which will keep the weather breezy and relatively cool through the end of the work week. Local north winds of 15-25 mph can be expected in Santa Barbara County this morning and again tonight through tomorrow morning. Additionally, west afternoon winds of 20-30 mph will develop today and Thursday in the Kern County Mountains, the Antelope Valley and the Banning Pass. Finally, gusty winds up to 50 mph will occur in the upper elevations of the Sierras and the Inyo National Forest for the next couple of days. Temperatures will remain 3-5 degrees below normal today and Thursday with highs in the 60s-70s along the coast to the lower 80s in the valleys. This weekend, a strong high pressure ridge over the Southwest will edge closer to the region. This will result in a dramatic warmup Saturday with temperatures climb 10-15 degrees under strong sunshine. By Monday – the height of the heatwave – widespread 100 degree readings can be expected. Highs on Monday will likely be 105-113 in the valleys and lower foothills and up to 120 in the desert. Minimum RH will likely drop into the single digits. Northerly pressure gradients may develop which could generate some locally breezy conditions in Santa Barbara County, the I-5 Corridor, San Fernando Valley and the Cajon Pass Sunday afternoon into Monday. The hot, dry weather will last through the middle of next week before temperatures moderate slightly by next Wednesday or Thursday. No precipitation is expected through the period.
